Overview

About this Course

Linux System Administrator Part One (RH124) is tailored for IT professionals who are new to Linux, aiming to provide them with foundational system administration skills. By concentrating on core administration tasks and introducing essential command-line concepts and enterprise-level tools, the course sets the groundwork for students aspiring to become full-time Linux system administrators. As the initial installment of a two-course series, RH124 lays the essential groundwork, while the subsequent course, Linux System Administrator Part Two (RH134), further expands on these concepts, guiding participants from basic knowledge to full capability in Linux administration.

This is the course equivalent of Red Hat Administration I.
